C.R.A.F.T.

The everyday five-part structure for outputs that need little editing.

USE IT WHEN You are writing emails, updates, reports, or anything you plan to send with minimal edits.

THE FIVE ELEMENTS

C — Context

What is going on. The situation or background the AI needs before acting.

R — Role

Who the AI should act as. Be specific about expertise and experience.

A — Action

The exact task and what success looks like. Not just "write an email" but what kind and to what end.

F — Format

How the output should look: length, structure, tone, and bullets or prose.

T — Target audience

Who the output is for. This shapes vocabulary, depth, and assumptions.

COPY AND FILL IN

```
CONTEXT: [the situation and background]
ROLE: Act as [specific expert with relevant experience]
ACTION: [exactly what to produce and the goal]
FORMAT: [length, structure, tone]
TARGET AUDIENCE: [who will read it and what they care about]
```

The key insight

Most bad AI outputs happen because the Role or Target audience was vague. Get specific on both and you will see an immediate improvement.